At 9:40 o'clock the Bellefonte contingent reached home after a most delightful afternoon and evening.

CURFEW LAW FOR PHILIPSBURG.

Ordinance at Last Passed by the Borough Council.

The Borough Council, at Friday night's session, passed a Curfew ordinance very similar to that in vogue in several other place in this part of the state. It relates to children under sixteen years of age, and will become effective as soon as the usual provisions have been met in the way of publishing the same, etc.

The council also gave instructions notifying the parties who have been guilty of throwing obstructions in Cold Stream and Moshannon creek to desist at once under a penalty of the law.

It was also ordered that all unpaid board walk accounts be placed with the borough attorney for immediate collection, and that the borough proceed to lay several other walks that property owners have failed to put down after due notice.—The Daily Journal

Why not have the Curfew in Bellefonte and get some of the boys and girls off the street. Don't let us be behind the times.

AN INCENDIARY'S WORK.

Dastardly Attempt Tuesday Evening to Set Fire to Haag Hotel.

About 7 o'clock Tuesday evening a most dastardly attempt was made to set fire to the Haag Hotel on Bishop street and only by good fortune was a most serious conflagration prevented. The girls employed about the hotel discovered smoke and an investigation led to the discovery of the source. Under one of the back porches was a pile of kindling, freshly cut, also a bottle of coal oil. Had the fire started a little later there is no telling the damage that would have been done to the big hotel and its occupants.

The police are making an investigation but as yet have no clue to the cowardly perpetrator of this dastardly act.

On Monday evening a man was discovered on the fourth floor of the Brockerhoff House and when an attempt was made to capture him he ran down the fire scape and got away.

Young Man's Encounter With Big Black Snake.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin says at Starr Island Sunday took place in the central part of the park, a fierce battle between a young man from Williamsport and a big blacksnake. It is probably due to young Daniel Fessler that a little girl was not injured by the reptile. The snake, measuring three feet, ten inches, was finally outdone and captured alive by the young man.

When Fessler first saw the blacksnake he was attracted to the spot by the actions of a little girl who was frightened and backed away from the place where it lay coiled and ready to spring, directly in her path.

Fessler did not hesitate to interfere, and his first action was to throw a stone at it. The missile took only slight effect, but caused a wound. The reptile made a spring for him and wrapped itself partially around one of his arms. Blood from its wound was left on his face.

The blacksnake bites, but its sting is not poisonous, its mode of fighting being to coil around an arm and paralyze the member, or wrap itself around the neck and strangle its foe. The snake made several attempts at this, but was weakened, and by beating it, Fessler managed to get the better of the fight and finally took the snake alive.

He brought it home with him and intends to make a belt from its skin. The fight caused considerable excitement among the people in the park.

Counterfeiters' Dies Hidden in Mill Pond.

A new feature of the Potter county counterfeiting case has just developed. One of the four men under arrest, charged with making and circulating the bogus coin, and now in the jail at Coudersport, has confessed that the dies with which the dollars and half-dollars were made were thrown into the log pond of the Goodyear Lumber company at Galeton, one night while they were crossing the bridge.

The pond will be dragged, as the government is determined to recover the dies as evidence against the men. The prisoner says the dies were flung into the pond a few days before the gang's arrest, because they had suspicions of the inquisitive stranger, garbed in woodsman's dress, who had come to town and was nosing about.

The stranger proved to be Secret Service Officer Washer. Besides the dies, some of the material from which the spurious coins were moulded was thrown into the pond.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

Of the Condition of the Bellefonte Public Schools.

BY PROF. J. D. MEYER

Supervising Principal of the City Schools —Attendance, Discipline and Instruction.

PARENT'S DAY AND GENERAL STATISTICS

TO THE PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE BELLEFONTE SCHOOL BOARD:

Gentlemen;

I have the honor herewith to submit my first annual report of the schools under your direction.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

School population, between 6 and 16 years of age	876
Enrollment in Public schools	627
Number Enrolled over 16 years of age	59
" Attending other schools or receiving private instruction	164
" Certificates given to those working	31
" Excused on account of sickness	16
" Under 8 years	14
" Out of Public Schools, not vaccinated	2
" Out of school for various reasons	9
" Tuition pupils: High School 22; Grades 29;	51

ATTENDANCE.

The attendance of the pupils of our schools has been good throughout the year notwithstanding the many cases of sickness to which school children are subject. In only a few instances were we much annoyed by truancy on the part of the pupils, and toward the latter part of the year after the employment of a truancy officer the number of these cases was reduced to a minimum. Quite a number of children who should be in school are employed in the various industries of our town, and it is a sad comment upon the present day mode of living that children must be deprived of a good education in order to help meet the struggles of life at so early an age. The wages they receive are very attractive but in the end these children are the losers, and it is unfortunate for the child, for the family and equally unfortunate for the state, the hope of which depends upon the intelligence of its children.

DISCIPLINE

In many of our schools during the past year discipline was a secondary matter, because of the fact that the teachers handled the school so well that good order and close attention naturally followed. The good teacher develope such an interest in the lessons and stimulate such a school spirit that the boys and girls seem to govern themselves. The good teacher is a good disciplinarian. The cases of corporal punishment reported for the year were few, showing that most of the teachers were otherwise resourceful in handling the perplexing matters of the school room.

INSTRUCTION.

The good work done in the American schools and the efficiency of them depends primarily upon the professional skill of the teachers Most of our teachers are students of the various educational methods and are working out the problems of their schools on true pedagogical principles. By the reading of educational magazines and other works upon education the teacher learns of the latest methods, and in school work the teacher must keep abreast with the times. More interest in the study of pedagogy and in educational matters in general on the part of some of our teachers would be very helpful to some of our schools. Courses of study, rules and regulations no matter how well arranged will never raise the educational standard of a community unless the teachers are trained for the work and ever manifest the spirit of the true education of the children under their charge. I have been pleased to note that as a rule our teachers teach, not talk. The talkative teacher is not an artist, but only an artisan.

PARENT'S DAY.

Fully realizing the help to the teacher to be derived from the parents we arranged a series of Parent's Day in the various buildings in order to get the parents into the schools so that they

JAIL BREAKER FOILED.

Lester Sirgney a French Canadian Makes Unsuccessful attempt to Break out of Centre County Jail.

Fort Kline, Centre County's bastile, was thrown into excitement Saturday morning last, when it was discovered that an attempt had been made to break out of jail. The would be jail breaker was Lester Sirgney, a French Canadian who was arrested at Philipsburg a few weeks ago by Officer Sankey of that place on the charge of stealing a horse from a man named Miller residing in Taylor township.

Sirgney's cell is No. 1 on the second tier of cells and next to the woman's department. Sirgney in some manner secured possession of an iron bar, probably taken from his bed, and with this dug two holes in the stone wall next to the yard. The stones and mortar taken from the wall were concealed under his bed. He had everything ready to leave jail Saturday night. Saturday morning he was sent to the bath room and ordered to take a bath. While in there a young Italian, who is a fellow prisoner entered Sirgney's cell and happening to glance in the direction of the bed noticed some pieces of mortar and stone. He made an investigation and at once discovered two large holes almost clear through the wall. He reported it to the sheriff and as a result Sirgney's little game was spoiled, and he now sleeps in a steel cell where his chances of escape are nixie.

Sirgney is a strange sort of a fellow and has evidently been in jail before. Since his attempt to break jail was discover eatened to commit suicide. He ate several cakes of soap thinking that would end his life and would butt his head against the steel sides of his cell until the jail rang with the noise.

If Sirgney had gotten out of the cell house into the jail yard the high stone walls would have probably prevented his escape anyway.

Fund Held in Trust to Pay off State Debt

In seeking to purchase $18,750 of state 1912 four per cent bonds held by the Girard Trust company of Philadelphia, State Treasurer Berry has discovered that in due time one man will wipe out the entire state debt of Pennsylvania. The Girard Trust, in answer to Mr. Berry's offer of 107 and interest for the bonds, informs him that they were purchased from an original fund of $337.75 deposited with it by Charles F. McCay of Georgia, in 1848, to be used to purchase Pennsylvania state stock, that the income was to be applied to the same purpose and when the sum accumulated equaled the amount of the state debt it was to be used to wipe out the debt.

From time to time McCay added to the original sum until it amounted to $2,000. By good management on the part of the trust company the present holding of $18,750 of state bonds has been reached, but under the compact it cannot be used until the state debt is decreased to equal the sum held, when the state treasurer is requested to notify the Girard Trust, and with Mr. McCay's legacy it will at once knock the financial shackles from the grand old Keystone State and it will not owe any man a cent.

Mr. McCay is said to have come north at the outbreak of the Civil war and died in Philadelphia.

A Fire Near Snow Shoe.

Monday July 2 the little town of Pan Cake Mill about one mile from Snow Shoe was visited by a conflagration which resulted in the total destruction of a house and household effects and death of a little child.

The house belonged to Mr. Thomas McCartney, the flames had made such headway before discovery that it was impossible to save the property or the life of his little four year old daughter, who was in the house at the time.

The funeral of the little girl took place the next afternoon at 2 o'clock.

WHEN MYRA FORGAVE

By ROSE RAWSON

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

The ice was in splendid condition, and carefully avoiding the people she knew in the crowd about the boat landing Myra struck out with long, powerful strokes for up the river.

She was in no mood for company. She wanted to be alone and think things over. It is a serious thing when a girl gives back her first engagement ring and informs the donor that she never wants to see him again. That experience had come to Myra that afternoon.

It had all been ridiculously foolish. Tom had scoffed at her for having joined the Browning club, declaring Browning to be a prize puzzler and not a poet. She had taken offense, and they had had their first quarrel. She had given back his ring and he had gone off in dudgeon, leaving her with the afternoon on her hands. They had planned to skate to Riverdale, five miles up the river; have supper there and skate back by moonlight. Now it was all spoiled and she must skate alone.

She was fond of the ice, and the swift motion and the bracing air soon put her in a more pleasant frame of mind. Perhaps she had been hasty in giving back the ring, but then it is not every day that one is elected the president of the literary club, and he might at least have congratulated her upon her victory over Nettie Doran.

She had been so engrossed with her thoughts that it was with surprise that she found she had entered the "cut," more than two miles from the landing. Here the river ran between steep bluffs for three-quarters of a mile, and she shuddered a little as she glanced at the cliffs on either side. She never had noticed it before, but now they seemed so black and forbidding.

She was still glancing up as her skate struck a bit of wood frozen into the ice, and with a cry she sank to the glassy surface. She struggled to her feet, but with another little moan she sank to one knee; she had sprained her left ankle.

Several times she essayed to rise, but each time her ankle hurt her more, and finally she desisted and crept on hands and knees to the bank. Perhaps some of the others would take it into their heads to skate up and they would give her help. If no one came she would try to creep back after she had rested.

But after an hour she gave up hope of help coming. She was so numb she could scarcely move. She began to cry softly. If she could not get to the lower end of the cut, where she might attract attention of some one on shore, she might freeze to death.

With infinite labor she crawled a few feet, but she had to give up and sit down again. Perhaps they might miss her at the landing and remember that she had gone up the river. They would send out a searching party for her. It might be an hour or more before she could hope for help, but the idea brought her some comfort, though it did not check the flow of tears.

Then her quick ear caught the welcome sound of the ring of steel on the hard ice and she tried to struggle to her feet.

Around the bend above Tom Runyon came with powerful strokes. He was looking straight ahead, and in the dusk he passed her. Before she could gain the courage to call to him he stopped suddenly and turned. In a flash he was at her side, kneeling before her.

"What's the matter, dear?" he asked. "Are you hurt?"

"I've sprained my ankle," she sobbed, "and I'm tired and cold and hungry, and it hurts an awful lot. I'm so miserable."

"How long have you been here?" he asked.

"Hours," she moaned. "It seems like days, and it's so black and lonesome."

"Poor little girl!" he said tenderly. "I'll soon have you out of it. I'll skate down to the landing and borrow a sled."

She grasped his coat in terror. "Don't leave me!" she pleaded. "I think I would go crazy!"

"It would take only ten minutes or so," he argued, but she kept a convulsive hold upon his coat. Presently an idea struck him.

"Can you stand on your other foot?" he asked. "Will it bear your weight?"

For answer she put out her hands, and he helped her to rise. She winced as the lame foot struck the ice, but she smiled bravely.

"I think I can," she said.

Tom dropped on one knee and started to unfasten the skate on the injured foot. The ankle was so swollen that he had to cut the strap through, but presently he rose and grasped her hands.

"Now keep the foot up," he commanded, "and let me tow you."

It was a little awkward at first. They skated together nicely, but now she could not take a stroke, merely sliding along upon the single runner and leaning heavily against him for support. Under his coaching she soon caught the idea, and presently they were swinging along at a good pace.

The injured foot ached with the motion and weight of the boot, but it was comforting to feel Tom's strong hand clasp and to lean against his shoulder as they sped along.

Somehow she had never realized what a strong man he was until she felt herself being carried along almost without an effort. It was less than ten minutes before they came in sight of the town as they turned the last curve.

"Looks kind of good, doesn't it?" he laughed as she gave a cry of delight.

"I thought I never should see it again," she confessed. "I had almost given up hope."

"Lucky thing I had to go to Riverdale," he commented. "I had given up the idea, but Johnson took me up in his rig to look at a horse he wants to sell me, and I took my skates along."

"I'm glad it was you," she murmured.

"Are you?" he asked in surprise. "I thought you would have had almost any one else rescue you."

"I did feel that way for a moment," she confessed, "when I first saw it was you. I wonder why you turned around."

"Something seemed to stop me," he explained. "It was a funny sort of feeling. I just seemed to see you behind me, and I had to turn around to make certain. It seemed almost as if a great hand made me stop."

"I think it was fate," she said softly.

"Maybe I sort of half saw you and was not conscious of it until I had passed you," he suggested.

"I would rather believe it was fate," she persisted.

"So would I," he said soberly. "Here's the landing."

The crowd had left the ice and had gone home to supper. There were no sleds around, so he slipped off his skates and caught her up in his arms.

"It's only a couple of blocks," he said. "We'll get home more quickly this way."

She did not make any comment until he had carried her into the house and had bestowed her comfortably upon the sofa. As he turned to go she spoke his name softly. He turned back.

"Will you be over after tea?" she asked.

"Surely," he answered. "I shall want to know how you are getting along."

"Will you bring the ring," she whispered.

"I have it right here!" he cried out eagerly.

For answer she stretched out her hand, and he slipped it on.

"This makes me think of the only Browning I know," he laughed. "Remember:

"There's a time in the lives of most women and men
When all would go smooth and even
If only the dead knew when
To come back and be forgiven."

"I forgave you long before that," she whispered. "I care more for you than I do for Browning."

Pigs In China.

A Peking correspondent says: "It is no uncommon sight to see twelve or thirteen enormous fat pigs, with their legs tied, huddled close together having a ride in a Chinese cart with some sort of light cargo on top of them and a man sitting on the cargo. The pigs are silent, and consequently one would think they should not be objects for the action of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The fact is that the animals are too fat and lazy to make any noise until disturbed at their journey's end, when bagpipes are as Italian opera to the terrific squealing heard."

The Dead Sea.

The Dead sea is 1,300 feet below sea level. There can, of course, be no outlet for the Dead sea, and the volume of from 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of water that the Jordan throws into it every twenty-four hours must be carried away by evaporation. Not a solitary dwelling is on its coasts, and there is no living thing in its waters. As we stand on the north shore the sea stretches out some forty-two miles toward the south and is, on an average, eight miles wide. The water is of a greenish blue and as clear as crystal.

Those Fool Questions.

"Hello," says the man, seeing his friend sallying forth with pole and net and bait basket. "Going fishing?"

"No," replies the friend, turning on him solemnly. "No; I'm going to stand on my head and keep my hair from falling out. What made you think I was going fishing?"—Puck.

No Chance to Forget.

Hohsehold Hints.

DAINTY AND UNUSUAL FOR TINA.

A new and pretty salad is a banana rolled in chopped nuts, dressed with a mayonnaise, and served on a lettuce leaf. You might have that The bouillion or consomme you can buy canned, and by flavoring well and seasoning make it very good. If you do not have the patties have the creamed chicken or oysters, in small paper cases which may be bought in fancy shapes. You could have jellied chicken or tongue with the salad, if you wish.

ICE CREAM FOR ALL.

In the tenement kitchen cooking classes conducted by the League for Home Economics in New York city there is always a great demand on the part of the women for a recipe for ice cream. While on the face of it this might seem a needless luxury, it is far more wholesome and nourishing than any of the cheap bakers' or delicatessen stuff in which they are wont to indulge. When they club together, as they often do in buying the ice and even the freezer, they can make an extremely inexpensive treat for themselves. This is the rule taught them, and it is delicious enough one to be used in any family: To each quart of milk allow two eggs, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoonful corn starch and flavoring to suit. Scald the milk, reserving a quarter of a cup in which to dissolve the corn starch. When the milk boils, stir in the dissolved cornstarch and set in a pan of hot water to cook fifteen minutes. Add the sugar, stir until dissolved, then add the beaten eggs; take from the fire, flavor cool and freeze.

LIMA BEANS

While fresh-grown vegetables are still scarce and high the good old lima bean may be pressed into active service. In the first place, they may be treated just the same as the ordinary pea or kidney bean and baked. It is, however, wiser, after soaking over night in cold water, to put the beans on in cold water in the morning, changing twice, as it reaches the boiling point, instead of once, as is usually the way with baked beans. In making succotash of the dried beans cook until tender, which will require several hours, then add canned corn, half and half, or two-thirds of corn to one of lima beans, and season with butter, salt and pepper. A little sugar is added by some cooks, and some like the addition of a little cream. This is a matter of individual taste.

PINEAPPLE SHORTCAKE

While pineapples are in season try a pineapple shortcake. Make a rich biscuit dough and bake in two parts. For the filling, peel a rich, ripe sugar loaf pineapple and shred or cut into tiny cubes. Cover with sugar to sweeten and leave over night. When ready to to fill the cake drain off the surplus juice and use it with whipped cream as a sauce to pour over the shortcake. Canned pineapple also makes a delicious shortcake filling for winter. In canning the fruit allow a half pound of sugar to each pound of fruit.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED,

Some Bellefonte People Have Learned How To Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living in Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

FATAL FIGHT AT BRADLEY!

That Part of the Ohio Coal Field Scene of Riot on Sunday.

GUARDS INTOXICATED

Fired in the Air and Their Comrades Across a Ravine Fired on Miners.

FARMERS ENTER A PROTEST.

Dillonville, O., July 2nd.—Investigation by the authorities of the miners riot at Bradley yesterday shows that one man is dead, two are fatally injured, while seven others are seriously wounded as a result of the encounter yesterday.

At noon yesterday twenty guards employed at Plum Run marched into Bradley and engaged in drinking at one of the company houses. Subsequently five of them came out and fired their guns in the air. The guard stations across the ravine imagined that miners were attacking the guards and fired upon the strikers, whereupon, as a matter of defense, the strikers retaliated. The firing continued for nearly three hours. Two houses in the settlement were struck with bullets from the guards' Winchesters and the only store not controlled by the coal company was almost shot to pieces.

The wives and children of the strikers fled from their homes to the cellar and the unarmed miners took refuge behind the building. The guards then crossed the ravine and attacked the strikers with fearful results. Those shot were. James Betram, shot through left leg; James Fiske, a paralytic, shot through head and eye shot out; William Williams, wounded in right shoulder; Mike Smith, shot through the stomach and will die; Frank Otreski, shot through the stomach, died at seven o'clock this morning.

Farmers in the vicinity of Bradley appealed to Sheriff Vorhees today for protection against the guards, claiming that their stock is shot down in the fields and other depredations committed by the non residents. The situation here is worse than at any time since the strike was inaugurated. The miners are determined to stand out for the settlement agreed upon by ex-President Winder, of the 'stand-pat" operators, and are encouraged by the statement that a number of small operators will break away from the organization and accept the scale.

Rattlesnake Circus is a Paying Venture.

Martin Fish, a Canadensis man, has devised a new sort of a show to give the thrills to jaded summer boarders, at Strandsburg, Pa., and although he asks but the moderate sum of 10 cents admission he is making out well with it.

Fish's stock in trade consists of 33 rattlesnakes, which he himself caught in the neighborhood of his Canadensis home They vary in length from three feet to five.

Visitors are admitted to the room where the reptiles are, and are usually greeted with vigorous hissing and rattling, for the snakes are in prime fettle, thanks to Fish's knowledge of their habits and how to feed them.

Spectators are admitted to a post quite near the exhibition of course in a position secure from danger. Townspeople and neighbors are admitted free, and Fish merely charges summer visitors enough to reward his efforts in catching and caring for the uncanny creatures.

CENTRE COUNTY FOLKS PICNIC.

Third Annual Reunion Under Trees at Belmont Mansion Philadelphia.

Three generations of "Centre County Folks" get together Saturday and had a real old-fashioned up-State picnic at Belmont Mansion, Philadelphia. It was the third annual reunion of the Centre County Association, which bears the distinction of being the only organization of its kind in the city. Its members or their ancestors all lived at one time in Centre county, and, although scattered and long separated, they meet once a year to renew old friendships and to make new ones in the additions that come to their families as time goes on. Little children and gray-bearded men sat side by side at the same tables Saturday. It seemed for all the world like a big family gathering.

"Do you remember—"

"The cherry pies of Centre County?"

"The picnics we had then?"

"The old-fashioned cheese straws?"

"The sleigh rides?"

"The prim district school teacher?"

"How we went bare-footed on hot days like these?"

"My Aunt Drusilla and Uncle Joe?"

Questions like these and hundreds of others were exchanged during the afternoon, and memories of by-gone days were pleasantly revived.

Prosperous business men who eat in up-to-date city restaurants let modern custom go by the board, and for the fun of the thing let their knives instead of their forks play the important part in disposing of the good things which the wives, sisters and mothers provided for the tables.

There were about 300 persons present of the 1000 members, and if the storm had not prevented it many more and a good time, too, were looked for in the evening. Among those present was the oldest member of the association, General B. F. Fisher, a hero of the Civil War. The General escaped from Libby Prison during the war.

Dr. Roland G. Curtin, a well-known physician and president of the association, was also on hand and did much to make the guests and friends feel at home.

The other officers of the association are Thomas Foster, vice-president; T. Olin Meek, treasurer; Dr. S. Gray Mattern, secretary, and Dr. George P. Rishel, Ira D. Garman, and General B. F. Fisher T. Emery Hoy, B. Frank Shaffer, Charles McCafferty, William S. Furst, Herman Haupt, Max Liveright, William A. Magee, George P. Bible, Thomas I. Loughrey, J. T. Spangler, William T. Meyer, Dr. Stuart Runkle and Rev. Dr. Robert Harkinson.

All of the members of the association reside at present either in or near Philadelphia. There is a feeling of pride among them over the successes won in the world by Centre county men. The county has furnished four Governors of Pennsylvania—William Bigler, J. A. Beaver, D. H. Hastings and A. G. Curtin.

A very pretty wedding took place at Frenchville June 27th. the contracting parties being Lena V. Healy and Jas. W. Reese both of Karthaus. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Martin Healy and an estimable and accomplished young lady. The bridegroom is in business in above town and highly respected by all who know him. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McAvenue, after which a sumptuous dinner was served to about forty guests.

OPEN PUBLICITY THE BEST GUARANTY OF MERIT.

When the maker of a medicine, sold through druggists for family use, takes his patients fully into his confidence by frankly and fearlessly publishing broadcast as well as on its bottle wrappers, a full list of all its ingredients in plain English, this action on his part is the best possible evidence that he is not afraid to have the search light of investigation turned full upon his formula and that it will bear the fullest scrutiny and the most thorough investigation. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of the weaknesses, periodical pains and functional derangements of the organs distinctly feminine, is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for woman's special use, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his full confidence by such open and honest publicity.

A glance at the published ingredients on each bottle wrapper, will show that it is made wholly from native, American, medicinal roots, that it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the active medicinal properties found in the roots of the American forest plants employed. It is the only medicine for women's pecular diseases, sold by druggists, that does not contain a large percentage of alcohol, which is in the long run so harmful to woman's delicate, nervous system. Now, glycerine is perfectly harmless, and serves a valuable purpose by possessing intrinsic value all its own, and besides it enhances the curative effect of the other ingredients entering into the "Favorite Prescription."

Some of the ablest medical writers and teachers endorse these views and praise all the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is composed—recommending them for the cure of the very same diseases for which this world-famed medicine is advised. No other medicine for women has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. If interested, send name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his little book of extracts from the works of eminent medical writers and teachers, endorsing the several ingredients and telling just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of. It's free for the asking.

Counterfeiter's Wife Causes Gang's Arrest.

From out of the deep forest belt of lower Potter county, where lumber camps dot the valleys and troops of woodsmen find employment, comes a story that savors of the chapters that are made in the hills of Kentucky or Tennessee, where moonshiners flourish and where Uncle Sam's revenue officers often fight for their lives

In this case, the facts have to do with the gang of counterfeiters, whose layout was disclosed to two government sleuths by the confession of a woman, whose love for one of the detectives loosed her tongue and let out the secret.

As a result, and after a quite exciting capture, Burton Kent, Martin C. Kent and Walter Bixby are in jail at Coudersport, each in default of $1,000 bail. They are charged with making and circulating counterfeit silver dollars.

In the home of Burton Kent, which is in a remote section of the Lyman Run district, was found a set of counterfeiters' appliances, together with many spurious silver dollars, such as have been circulated in that section during the last six months.

The secret service men who made the arrests came into the Lyman Run lumber district about a week apart, secured work at the camps, and as woodsmen of a hardened, reckless type, became the chums and fellow-choppers of the Kents and Bixby.

The detectives carried out their ruse even to having an imaginary fierce fist fight between themselves. This incident arrayed the Kents and Bixby against one of the strangers, but the wife of one of the two, part in pity and part in love for the ostracized sleuth, showed him the favoritism that he yearned for, and before long she had divulged to him the secret of the unlawful work of the men who had become estranged against him.

The sequal came last Friday night, when the two detectives, fully armed, swooped down upon the Kent homestead.

There was a few minutes of desperate resistance, but the officers had the upper hand, and the arrests were accomplished.

Barn Burned at Clintondale.

The large barn on the farm owned by the White Milling company at Clintondale was totally destroyed by fire Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, together with the wagon shed, corn crib, pig pen and other out-buildings. A team of farm horses, two pigs, a large quantity of hay and all the fine stock of farming implements were destroyed.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. About 7:30 o'clock, a lady who lives near the barn, saw a light in the straw mow and thought it was a lighted lantern. She went over to investigate and found the straw on fire. She screamed "Fire!" and a number of men quickly came upon the scene but the fire spread so rapidly that they could do nothing. The mill team was rescued but the farm horses had to be left to their fate. By hard work and with the help of a slight shower the mill and other nearby buildings were saved.

The amount of the loss could not be learned but it is understood that it is party covered by insurance.

The Moyer Reunion.

Centre county people attending a reunion of the Moyer family held June 14th, at the residence of Samuel Moyer near Campbelltown, Lebanon county, Pa., where Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fishburn, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Hoy, of Bellefonte; Jacob Meyer of Linden Hall, Mrs. Rachel Dale, Oak Hall, and J. H. Meyer, Boalsburg. The above named people are relatives to the Moyers. The day was delightful and the occasion a pleasant one. The reunion was composed of parents, children, grandchildren, relatives, a goodly delegation of young ladies of Women's College, Frederick, Md., also Lebanon Valley College and some from Millersville State Normal school. There was a very nice program for the occasion consisting of addresses, music and recitations which were delivered in the afternoon.

Words of Wisdom.

Some people are so lazy they yawn in their sleep.

An easy way to get popular with a man is to tell him he is.

It's awful short-sighted to lie if the truth will fool people more

A girl is pretty sure she is in love even when she doesn't know who it is.

A man's own funeral is expensive, but it saves him a lot of money afterward.

Next to going to a funeral a woman seems to get the most fun out of visiting a hospital.

A woman will always believe you like her if you pretend to believe she doesn't like you.

One satisfaction a widow has about her husband is she knows he cannot stay out all night.

Machinery of Memory.

The machinery of memory was thus interestingly described by an authority on the brain: "The act of remembering something," he said, "involves a distinct change in the brain substance. The thing to be remembered is recorded by a little nerve cell. The first time the cell does its work an impression is made upon it. But that impression is apt to wear off unless the action of the cell is repeated, and the oftener this is the case the more fixed becomes the impression, or 'cell memory,' as it is called. Suppose that the work of this particular cell is to enable you to recognize a certain [illegible]; the impression is made but once, the cell may fail to retain it, but if it is repeated several times a lasting impression will be made, and you will recognize the particular odor when you meet with it again."

BANANAS ARE TENDER.

They Are Easily Chilled and Easily Become Too Ripe.

"You would not believe how tender these bananas are," said a banana man the other day. "They are more tender than eggs. They will chill in fact, at 52 degrees—that is, the green ones, while the ripe ones will stand a somewhat lower temperature.

"A chilled banana never ripens. While green a banana will bleed when bruised, exuding a juice approaching the color of the fruit when it is ripened. Under the influence of cold this sap becomes chilled and dried, and the life is out of the banana. After that it breaks like a stick and is of about as much value as a stick for the purpose for which bananas are usually bought.

"From the time the bananas are taken green from the trees till they are sent out by the wholesalers in a condition approaching ripeness, a period of nearly a month elapses. At the Central American plantations they are loaded on big scows by negroes, poled out to fruit steamers and carried up to New Orleans. They are unloaded also by negroes, who carry the bunches to the scales before placing them on the cars. The whole load, negro, bananas, and all, is weighed and the African weight deducted. The produce men buy the bananas by weight in New Orleans, though they sell them by the bunch here. From the time they leave the plantation till they are loaded on the fruit train is usually a period of about four or five days.

"A messenger who knows bananas 'from the stalk to the tarantula' accompanies each train. He rides in the caboose, and he watches those bananas as a setting hen guards her eggs. The temperature in the car when they are loaded is usually from 60 to 70 degrees. Seventy, in fact, is a trifle too warm. The messenger is between two fires all the time, or, to put it more accurately, he is between heat and frost all the time. At 52 degrees the green bananas will chill, while a slightly lower temperature will absolutely ruin them. If a temperature of 70 or over be maintained throughout the journey of about fourteen days from New Orleans to the northwest, the fruit will arrive too soft and ripe and will very likely be worthless before it can reach the hands of the retailer.

"The fruit should reach here in a green condition, so as to require a few days in the ripening room before being placed on sale. This is a little room at the rear of the commission house in which the bananas are placed after their arrival. There an attempt is made to reproduce the warm, humid conditions of the Central American plantation. This effect is furnished by a little gas stove kept burning part of the time, over which is placed a pan of water to form the steam.

"Three to five days under these conditions usually place the fruit in shape to show to the retailer, who comes along the street with his eye peeled for the bright yellow color of the ripened bananas.

"For northern shipment the bananas are sent out in an unripe condition, wrapped in heavy manila paper, besides the straw wrapping, which is designed to protect them from bruising when sent out to the local trade. Some varieties are totally unsuited to northern shipment, as they would ripen too soon and be unfit for use before they reached the northern market.

"It is a remarkable fact in the case of ripened bananas that, though the cold will turn the skins a dark copper brown, giving them a repulsive appearance, the quality of the fruit, as far as flavor is concerned, is unimpaired. Notwithstanding this fact, the darkening of the color spoils their sale in the market, as they 'don't look good' to the uninitiated, and it is the outsider, after all, and not the commission man who eats them."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Great Canals as Panic Causers.

"The effect of opening the Suez canal," writes William R. Stewart in the Technical World Magazine, "was so marked in the first confusion which it introduced into the business world that it constituted one of the prime causes of the universal commercial and industrial panic of 1873.

"By transferring the distributing points for trade from England to the Mediterranean ports of southern Europe it terminated the vast warehouse distribution system of the former country and led to the disappearance of the class of merchant princes who hitherto had monopolized the eastern traffic. As it was with the owners of English warehouses, so it was with the owners of hundreds of sailing vessels and the dealers in six months' bills. For the Suez canal, by bringing steamers into use in place of the sailing vessels which had been making the 5,000 mile longer voyage around the Cape, enabled a cargo to be sold and delivered within a month after the order had been sent, and business men without capital were able to borrow money at a low rate and supplant the old established houses in the eastern trade."

KEEP PEACE IN DOMINGO!

Uncle Sam's Warships are to Safeguard Receipts of Custom House

ONE VESSEL IS THERE

The Lack on the Part of the Senate to Ratify Treaty Will Keep United States Busy.

REVOLUTION GERM IS ACTIVE

Washington, July 5.—That the failure of the senate to ratify the Dominican treat may result in an attempt to start another revolution in the turbulent little republic is apprehended by the state department, and steps have already been taken to forestall any trouble. The administration is determined that affairs in Santo Domingo shall remain in statu quo and to that end a fleet of warships will be kept in Dominican waters to avert any disturbance.

The cruiser Columbia, which has been at Colon, Panama, with a detachment of 400 marines in addition to her regular complement, in anticipation of election trouble upon the isthmus, is to sail at once for Santo Domingo. She will stop only at Guantanamo for coal. She will be joined there by other warships, which will make the flotille hitherto commanded by Captain Southerland, with the Yankee as his principal vessel, formidable enough not only to stop an insurrection but to prevent one from taking place.

While it is asserted that the state department has no definite advices to the effect that a revolution is imminent in Santo Domingo, the decision to send additional warships there is seen as a matter of precaution. The administration does not mean that there shall be any revolution. If the attempt at one it will be blotted out before it has a chance even to splutter. In other words the administration does not intend to be caught off guard. The present situation is to be maintained by force of arms, if necessary, until some binding agreement is established by which the 45 per cent of the customs now being collected by Receiver Colton may be distributed among the creditors of the republic in a systematic and equitable manner.

The failure of the treaty means that a political upheaval in the republic, with a change of policy with regard to the country's debts; would place in jeopardy the $1,3000,000 now on deposit in the National City bank in New York as a trust fund for Dominican creditors. This government and none of its agents could claim an interest in the fund, even as trustee, if the Dominican republic were to repudiate its obligations under the treaty which the senate refused to ratify; in fact, a change in the status quo would be no repudiation, there being no obligation under the Sanchez Dillingham agreement, so long as it has not become a regularly adopted treaty.

Therefore, the only way by which this government can save itself from embarrassment in the situation is by maintaining affairs as they now exist by preventing the Dominicans from quarrelling among themselves. This will be done, even if it is necessary to do so by force of arms.

The latest advices received at the state department regarding the whereabouts of former President Morales and General Jiminez is that the former is in St. Thomas and the latter in Porto Rico. Each is awaiting an opportunity to get into Santo Domingo with a force of men and overthrow the existing government. It is to prevent any movement on their part that additional warships are to be sent to Dominican waters.

Coleville Band in Town.

The Coleville band paid a brief visit to this city on the morning of the Fourth and delighted our people with their fine music. They were here for the purpose of attracting people to Hecla park where the Undine Fire company of Bellefonte held a picnic. A goodly crowd from this place accompanied the band back to Hecla.—Lock Haven Express.

Ants.

Last summer I was greatly annoyed by the number of small ants that crept under the door of my refrigerator. At last I discovered that the smell of kerosene was very offensive to them. So I dipped a string in this and placed it just outside the door. This did very well until they found that by climbing up the sides a little way they could avoid the nuisance. But when I dipped a tiny brush in kerosene and drew a line up and down the sides and across the top they left for other hunting grounds.

EDITORIAL.

The most gratifying feature of the business situation in this country now is its apparent permanency. There is nothing in sight to indicate any decline or break up of conditions. There are possibilities in Europe which would only remotely touch this country. The Russian situation may at any moment cause a panic in European markets because the latter are loaded down with Russian securities, but there are no such securities of any moment here. A European panic might effect Wall Street temporarily but it ought not to cause a ripple in the general business of the nation. Business has had many valuable lessons in recent years, and is on a stronger basis than in previous years.

A news item yesterday stated that unless something unforseen occurs President Roosevelt will not again appear in the public eye for some time to come. The public need not be alarmed. The enterprising correspondents will cheerfully see to it that if the news doesn't happen, it will be made. They will not let the country forget it has a president.

Charles A. Fagan, the Emery leader in Pittsburg, in discussing the gubernatorial outlook, says that if the election was held now there is no doubt but that Emery would be elected by a handsome majority. But four months is a long time on which to discount public sentiment. That was just a graceful way of admitting that Emery is going to get an everlasting walloping next fall. While we do not agree with him that Emery would win if the election were held now, Fagan is correct in his intimation that Republican prospects will increase every day between now and election day.

A newspaper headline reports the czar as hesitating. When the St. Petersburg reporters can find the czar doing anything else there will be opportunities to send some news of real importance across the cables.

TAFT FIRES FIRST GUN

Opens Congressional Campaign at Greensboro, N. C.

GIVES ADVICE TO THE SOUTH

Declares Democrats Kept Them "Solid" by Spectre of Negro Domination and He Advises Them to Break Away.

Greensboro, N. C., July 10.—Secretary of War Taft, before a meeting of North Carolinans on the eve of their convention, delivered a speech that was generally anticipated as the opening gun of the congressional campaign of 1906. The speech dealt with corrupt political questions and opening with advice to the rank and file of the party in North Carolina and the south particularly referred to the achievements of the party in the session of congress just closed. Mr. Taft said in part:

In opening he said that when he was invited to address this meeting the committee advised him "that the political situation was such that if a proper effort was made at the coming election it would be possible to carry the state for the Republican party." The secretary added:

"I believe that nothing that could happen in the politics of this country would work greater advantage to the country at large, and to the south in particular, than the breaking up of what has been properly known as the "solid south." I say this in no partisan spirit, for I am not one of those who think that this result would necessarily increase the probability of the continuance in power of the Republican party.

"The solidity of the south has, in a measure, furnished its own antidote in restraining many voters in the north, who might have left the Republican party but for what they regard as the injustice and danger of southern political conditions.

"The south has been kept solid by the spectre of negro domination and by stirring up racial prejudices and arousing unfounded alarm over an impossible return of reconstruction days," said the secretary. "After a long struggle of the negro's vote was made to count for nothing and then the political leaders of the dominant party came to realize that dreadful demoralization of all society that followed in a government if law was flouted and fraud was to constitute its basis. They cast about to make the law square with existing conditions by property and educational qualifications which should exclude the negro. They adopted amendments to the state constitution, with the so-called 'grandfather's clauses,' intended to apply the new qualifications to the negro and not to apply them to the whites."

"The secretary said it is impossible to frame a law establishing an educational qualification for suffrage which will stand the test of the 15th amendment, and which will not operate ultimately to exclude impartially the negroes and whites from the ballot who lack educational acquirement.

A policy in the south, he said, which excludes from the ballot impartially black and white, when ignorant and irresponsible, cannot be criticised.

During the past decade, Mr. Taft pointed out, a period of unprecedented prosperity has come for the fair southern states. "Under the circumstances," he said, "it is not to be expected that the sensible, clear-headed business men of the south do not perceive the tremendous disadvantage under which the southern states labor in having only one party with any voice in their state governments, and in being herded together always as the hide-bound support of the Democratic party of the country, no matter what wild fallacies it may adopt in its platform nor what candidate it may put before the country.

"The effect of the change of industrial conditions in eliminating the cry of negro domination from the politics of the former slave owning states has manifested itself first in the border states. West Virginia has become permanently Republican, and Maryland and Missouri put themselves in the Republican column in the last presidential election, while Kentucky nearly brought forth works meet for repentance in the first McKinley campaign."

Mr. Taft contended that if the southern people "had kept up with the times; had they at the ballot box expressed their sentiments on the living issues of the day, instead of allowing themselves to be frightened by a spectre and a shadow of the past, their political importance as communities and the significance of their views upon measures and men would have been vastly enhanced."

"The Republican party and Theodore Roosevelt," he declared, "are in favor of the just and equal operation of the law, whether it be by civil suit, by the process of injunction in equity or by indictment at the bar of the criminal court against the man who violates the law and another's right, whether he be rich or poor, a corporation president or a wage earner. They are against immunity from prosecution for violation of law either on the ground that a man has money or industrial or political power, or on the ground that he has not either."

might better become acquainted with the work done there These days proved to be most helpful to the school and in their beneficial results far exceeded our expectations. Several hundred parents came to see their children at work and the intercourse of parents, teachers and pupils was most pleasant.

PUBLIC EXHIBIT.

An exhibit of the work on different subjects done by the pupils of the various grades was held in connection with Parent's Day, and from the many kind expressions of appreciation on the part of all who saw the work was very gratifying indeed to the pupils and teachers. These exhibits are helpful in many ways as the pupil then sees what he can do when he really tries and they also give the patrons some idea of the work of the schools.

LIBRARIES.

The pupils of our schools now have access to about sixteen hundred books on various subjects. These books are in the High School and Grammer grades. The large number of books taken out shows that the boys and girls are awake to the advantages they can derive from this general reading. The well-read pupil generally has a better grasp of the subject as presented in the textbook than the pupil who spends his leisure time in idleness.

PROMOTIONS.

An effort has been made to acquire a high standard of promotion so that when a pupil is promoted he may feel that he has justly acquired the required standing and when he fails of promotion he well knows he has fallen short in his studies through carelessness, indifference, inability, absence or some other cause which cannot help but hinder a child in school work. Attention if given to the progress of the individual pupil and much care is exercised in the proper classifying. I do not feel very kindly disposed to the custom of having the child 'skip' a year as this is so often done at the expense of the health and as it often happens it makes a poor pupil out of a good one.

CLASS STANDING.

In every class there are some pupils, who through close application to their work are able to maintain a high standing. These, I think deserve especial mention and below I submit the names of those pupils receiving the highest grades in their respective classes throughout the year:

OBSERVANCE OF SPECIAL DAYS.

Along with the regular school work we have not lost sight of the fact that the children should be taught to have the proper regard for the observance of certain days as set apart by the higher authorities. These days help to inspire in the boys and girls a greater love of country and lead them to live higher and nobler lives by learning of the noble and self-sacrificing deeds of those who have spent their lives in helping mankind. In the preparation for these days we take as little time from the regular school work as is absolutely possible, and we feel that the relaxation the pupils get from their regular work is oftentimes helpful to them and that they receive inspiration to prosecute their work with renewed vigor.

MUSIC AND DRAWING.

It is with regret that I am not able to make any report on the subjects of Music and Drawing. These two subjects are badly neglected in our schools. The necessity of the teaching of these branches in our schools is keenly felt by all closely associated with the schools and I trust the Board will soon see its way clear for the introduction of these subjects as regular studies in our course of study.

CONCLUSION.

In closing this report I feel that it is not complete without congratulating the pupils on the honest work that has been done in general and the kindly help they have given the teachers throughout the year. I wish also to thank the teachers for their effective help in every endeavor to improve the schools. I take this occasion too to thank the members of the School Board for the hearty and sympathetic support which I have received in my administration during the past year. Such support is most helpful in meeting and solving the daily problems of school life.

Respectfully submitted,

Obituary.

At her home near Stormstown, June 24th., Mrs. Sarah R. Way widow of the late Caleb C. Way, departed to the life beyond at a few minutes past 12 o'clock. Just after returning from church where she had participated with unusual activity she had just entered the door of her home and sat down in a chair apparently to rest and in a few minutes time she had quietly breathed her last, caused by heart failure. She was past 73 years of age, active, energetic and ambitious to the end, as far as her strength would permit; An affectionate and tender wife and mother, a good and thoughtful neighbor active in church and in society in general, always ready to lend a helping hand to any good cause, full of appreciation of the beautiful.

Fond of cultivating flowers, which she was always ready to share with her friends. The loss to the home, church and community of such a one is incalculable; just so the joy and glorious reward that awaited her in the great Eternal world to us is inconceivable,

The deceased was one of seven, the family of Thomas and Hannah Wilson, of Half Moon Valley, which kindred had all preceeded her to the spirit world, and there the reunion awaited her, the one missing link in the chair was supplied. The late Mrs. Rebecca Fisher of Unionville, and Mrs. Jane Shivery of Bellefonte, having been amongst them, what a grand family reunion from which they never separate. Of the immediate family there remains, Edward B, wife and five children and Lydia R. all at home.

Funeral services were held at the home on the 27th., at 10 a. m. where a large company of relatives, friends and neighbors congregated. Services were conducted by Reuben P. Kester a minister of Grampian who preached to the living from the text "Set thy house in Order, for thou shalt die, and not live." Rev. Taylor of Stormstown assisting. Appropriate hymns were used, at the cemetery the occasion was made more solemn by the grand children dropping white roses into the open grave, from little baskets which they carried, and placed fern on the top.

"Something sweet to think of
A dear mothers love.
'Twas a priceless jewel round
My heart she wove,
How I long to see her,
But the Angels say,
Call her not back again
She is with you every day,
Blessed, sainted mother I can see her now,
As in days of childhood
When she kissed my brow.
'Tis my sweetest dearest joy
When the Angels say,
Call her not back again
She is with you every day.

Needless Demands.

When you have an uncomfortable task before you, don't make everybody in your vicinity share it If you are due at the dentist's at one o'clock, the fact is not an agreeable one for a whole forenoon's contemplation; but if one must consider it, that is certainly enough. Turn your own thoughts in some other direction if you can, and leave the pain in the hour where it belongs; but, in any case, do not insist that the whole family shall share the anticipatory pangs by needless talking about it. The needless small burdens that many of us inflict upon our friends through mere thoughtlessness, or weakness, become a heavy weight in the aggregate.

"Oh, don't ask her!" impulsively exclaimed one, when a girl's name was proposed in connection with a long ramble in the country. "Yes, I know she's nice and good, but is she chances to get a stone in her shoe, or a thorn in her hand, the rest of us will have to limp and bemoan all the way; she will neither think of anything else, nor allow others to do so."

Yet the general limping and bemoaning would not aid her in the least. That is the first fact to be grasped in learning to keep all our small woes for private consumption. When we have descanted upon the dentist all the morning, no one can make the dreaded visit for us. When we have upset the whole household with our regret over the ink spilled on the carpet, or the train that we fear will be behind time, the emergency in each case is still our own to meet as best we may. Why should we worry others to no purpose?

WHAT DRINK LED TO.

Crimes Committed by Frederick Weber, a Mill Worker.

Philadelphia, July 5.—While under the influence of liquor last night Frederick Weber, a mill worker, attempted to kill his wife, accidently shot two children and then sent a bullet into his own head with probably fatal effect. Weber had been quarreling with his wife during the day. He returned to his home and renewed the quarrel. Without warning he drew a pistol and sent a bullet at his wife's head. The missile inflicted a scalp wound and she ran screaming from the house. The husband followed and as she reached the street he sent two bullets after her. One struck a little girl, shattering her knee cap, and the other hit another child in the hip. A number of men rushed at Weber, but before they could wrest the revolver from him he shot himself twice in the head.

A Psalm of Marriage.

The following is said to have been written by a young lady of near Bellefonte.

Tell me not in idle jingle, marriage is an empty dream, for a girl is dead that's single and things are not what they seem. Life is real, life is earnest, single blessedness a fib, man thou art to man returneth, was not spoken of the rib. Not enjoyment and not sorrow in our destined end or view, but to act that each tomorrow finds us nearer marriage day. Life is short and youth is fleeting and our hearts though light and gay, pleasant drums are daily beating wedding marches all the way. In the world's great field of courtship, in the bivouac of life, be not like dumb driven cattle, be a heroine—a wife. Trust no future howe'er pleasant, let the dead past bury it dead, act, act in the living present, love within and hope o'er head. Lives of married folks remind us we can live our lives as well and departing leave behind us lots of kids to shout and yell. Such example that another wasting time in idle sports a forlorn unmarried brother seeing, shall take heart and court. Let us then be up and doing with a heart that's willing yet, still contriving, still pursuing and each one a husband get.

Nursery Notes.

A little olive oil rubbed on the child's scalp at night will loosen the dandruff so that it may be brushed away next morning.

If a child should swallow any dangerous substance, immediately slip down its throat the white of an egg, which will form a curd around it and thus prevent serious effects.

Rub the shoe laces of children's shoes with beeswax, and they will not come untied easily. A bit of the wax applied to the end when the metal tip is lost will facilitate the lacing, says the Brooklyn Times.

Never shut out fresh air and sunshine from baby's living and sleeping rooms. Sleep is more refreshing at night for the flood of sunshine and air let into the room during the day.

A child suffering from cold in the head should never be allowed to lie on its back in bed, but always on the side. The application of a little vaseline to the nasal passages will be found a relief. A little warm camphorated oil well rubbed on the back and chest is a capital remedy.

Always in Season.

When Hiram Bassett went down on the Cape to pay a visit, his friends provided him with every sort of fish they could muster, and for five days he was treated to mackerel, halibut, oysters, clams, scallops, and many other varieties, in the best possible condition.

"Well, Hiram" said his host, on the day of Mr. Bassett's return to his home, "I'd like to see what you'll get Hannah to cook for you first thing when you reach home. I reckon you've had fish enough to last you for one while."

"Pooh!" said Mr. Bassett, "I guess you don't know anything about it. You haven't lived in Massachusetts long enough. Hannah'll get me same thing she always does when I've been away from home for a spell—a real good mess o' codfish an' potato hash. That's what Hannah'll get me!"

The Little Wrinkle.

No one admires it.

It comes with age.

But worry helps it along.

So does excitement or anger.

The best preventive is to keep cool.

It won't hurt to steam the face once a week with hot cloths.

Nor to massage once in a while with a good skin food.

It's a good thing, too, to compose your face into pleasant expression before you go to sleep.

It is very neccessary also that you eat the right foods.

And, of course, fresh air and cleanliness and a brisk nightly massage will keep the furrows away.

But when they do come, don't acquire any more than necessary by fretting about it.

Must Even Slang Go

There seems to be no limit to the reform wave.

Here's the Elementary School Committee of the Philadelphia Board of Education, gravely adopting a resolution prohibiting the use by teachers of the following expressions:

Skidoo.
Hookey.
Twenty-three.
Beat it while your shoes are good.
18 and a bottle of milk.
Cut it out.
Back it up.
Nit.

Doubtless the author of the resolution would object to being called so slangy a thing as a muck raker.

It is quite probable that the Russian Douma would be willing to appropriate most any amount of money above $25,000 to send the czar on his travels.

President Says Under New Law Quality is Assured.

TRADE IN ENGLAND PARALYZED

Mr. Roosevelt Informs British Grocers That Tinned Meats Bearing Government Label Are Wholesome and Complaints Can Be Made to Government.

Sheffield, England, July 11. — The Grocers' Federation, whose annual conference is proceeding here, has received a communication from Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, enclosing a message from President Roosevelt, as follows:

"You are at liberty to inform the Grocers' Federation that under the new law we can and will guarantee the fitness in all respects of tinned meats bearing the government stamp. If any trouble arises therewith protest can at once be made not merely to the sellers of the goods, but to the United States government itself."

The secretary of the federation stated that President Roosevelt's message was in reply to one sent to him on behalf of the federation, saying trade was almost paralyzed, that dealers must be assured of the wholesome character of tinned goods, or otherwise they would have to stop stocking up with American goods. The speaker hoped the publication of the president's message would lead to a revival of the trade which has been so seriously injured. He said the loss to members of the federation in the canned meat trade had been very heavy.

The federation adopted a resolution thanking President Roosevelt. There was only one vote in dissent, that of J. F. Steel, of Bolton, who thought the president might have gone about the matter more carefully, and considered that it was all a political move to steal Bryan's thunder against the trusts. Drastic resolutions were referred to committees, one of which pledged the grocers not to stock with American canned meats until the packers have initiated an inspection system guaranteeing the wholesomeness of their output.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Brother of Victim Was Completely Paralyzed By Same Bolt.

Williamsport, Pa., July 11.—An electrical storm which passed over this city was especially severe and the cause of a sad fatality near Muncy, 14 miles below here in this county. At the home of Brady Frantz, a mile and a half east of Muncy, Mr. Frantz was standing on the rear porch talking to his two sons, Edward and Jacob, when a bolt of lightning struck the porch, and going through the roof, instantly killed Edward, aged 17, hurling him out into the yard onto a lawn mower, which cut a large gash in his head. His hat was burned off and his shoes torn off. Jacob, aged 19, was so badly burned all over his body that his flesh is blistered from head to foot, and he is completely paralyzed, being unable to speak. The doctor does not think he will die, but will be permanently paralyzed. The father escaped injury.

The rural mail carrier, enroute to Muncy, was held up two hours at the Frantz home by the heavy hail accompanying the storm.

Suspended Operations.

The Bellefonte Lime and Stone company, who for a number of years have operated the exclusive lime stone quarries and a crusher at Salona, have suspended their operations at that place. Although no notice of when they will resume has been given some of the citizens of Salona seem to think that the suspension will be for an indefinite period, as there has been no attempt to begin making improvements, which are really necessary. The selling of their horses and mules is also a sign that the quarries will not be operated again soon. This is quite a blow to the citizens of that community as many of the people found employment at these works. There is a well founded rumor current that the N. Y. C. R. R. company have leased the quarries near the Salona depot, formerly operated by the Furst Brothers, and that they will put in a crusher and crush the ballast for use on their lines. Should this rumor prove to be correct, it will furnish all the idle men in that community with work.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Williamsport is Happy Over Affair.

Williamsport yesterday celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of its incorporation with the programme that attracted 40,000 strangers who crowded the streets from early morning till late at night. The day was ushered in with a din of whistles and bells that was almost startling. This was followed at 10 o'clock by a parade made up of civic, industrial, mercantile, military and other features that was nearly five miles long in length and required two hours to pass. During the afternoon there was a reception at the city hall to the "old home" citizens and visitors, during which Mayor Boresman received thousands of persons. The afternoon was filled in by band concerts in the parks and public squares, and in the evening a brilliant display of fire works ended the day's programme. The public exercises yesterday were followed by the brilliant carnival spectacle in the evening and the many events of today marked the celebration as a complete success. Notwithstanding the immense crowds few accidents were reported and only one serious fire occurred. The special detectives were kept busy, however, and captured about a dozen professional crooks.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic,—say, a sustaning diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

Anyway the Congressional Record may take its vacation with the confident assurance that its subscribers have had their money's worth.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

Nearly Starved In Forest.

John Haney of Coudersport, walker for the Tidewater pipe line, was following his section through Cherry Creek forest a day or two ago, when he heard the "hello" of a man. He answered and a few moments later a man and a woman the latter in a most wretched condition, emerged from the thick woods. The couple were lost.

They had spent three days and two nights in the woods, and had nothing to eat except the roots and herbs. How far they had traveled they could not tell, nor would they give their names or say where they were going.

The woman begged for food and pleaded with Mr. to get her a dress, as her own was nearly torn from her body.

Mr. Haney gave the man and woman the food that he was carrying in his knapsack, and while they remained in the woods he walked to Cherry Springs, a distance of two miles, procured a dress for the woman and carried it back. Then directing the couple how to make the way eastward, Haney bade them good by.

The woman was in a state bordering on insanity and collapse.

Death Came to Bride While on Honeymoon.

After a brief illness, Mrs. Harry D. Miller, a bride of but nine days, formerly Miss Caroline Grover, of Flemington, died at the Pratt Private Hospital, at Elmira, on Sunday, of acute peritonitis. Both bride and groom are well known in Williamsport, Lock Haven and Bellefonte.

Their wedding occurred on Friday, June 29, at the home of the parents of the bride, the Rev. and Mrs. Daniel A. Grover. Mr. and Mrs. Miller went to Williamsport the same night and took the Buffalo flyer the next day for Buffalo. They visited that city and Niagara Falls. While on their way home Friday afternoon the bride was taken ill on the train. When Elmira was reached she was immediately taken to the Pratt hospital. Her illness rapidly developed into a serious stage, and Saturday night the doctors informed the young husband that there was no hope for his wife's recovery.

ROOT LEAVES FOR THE SOUTH

On the Cruiser Charleston He Departed from New York

TO VISIT MANY POINTS

These Will Be Big South American Ports on Either Side of Cape Horn.

HIS TALK WILL BE PEACE

New York, July 6th.—On as friendly and peaceful a mission as a United States man-of-war ever sailed, the cruiser Charleston left her anchorage in the lower bay last evening and shipped a course which will eventually carry her into all the big South American ports on either side of the Cape Horn.

Elihu Root, secretary of state, is quartered in a palatial cabin at the sterm of the cruiser and it will be his home for the next three months while he talks American peace, the Monroe doctrine and other official matters with the political leaders of South America. The most important appointment which he has made is for the Pan-American congress, and an inspection of the Panama canal will bring the cruise to a close.

Secretary Root is accompanied on this remarkable cruise by Mrs. Root, his son and his daughter. Quarters of elegance have been fitted up for them at the stern of the cruiser. The chugging of the Charleston's powerful propellors will be their greatest discomfort, for electric fans and new ice machines will in a measure defy the heat of the tropics.

The Secretary of state came over from Washington Tuesday evening, and was joined at a Broadway hotel Thursday morning by his family, who have been spending a part of the summer at Southampton, L. I. Thursday afternoon they boarded the harbor master's cutter, the Vigilant, at the New York yacht club landing stage, Twenty-Toird street and East River. Their baggage, amounting to half a hundred parcels, trailed along behind in the tender Narkeeta.

As the cabinet minister approached the Charleston a salute was fired in his honor and he was received with due formality by Commander C. McR. Winslow, who is in command of the Charleston. The Roots were hardly settled in their big cabins when the members of the Brazilian embassy, headed by Senor Gargel de Amaral, charge d'affaires, came on board to with the party a pleasant voyage.

At 5 o'clock the Charleston pulled up her anchors and steamed down the bay. Her first course will be direct to San Juan, Porto Rico, where the secretary of state will make his first inspection of the insular possessions of the United States.

The tour of the Pan-American countries will cost the government a pretty penny, but it is of such importance that money is no object. The Charleston has been painted and polished until she looks like a vessel just from the shipyard. The quarters of the commanding officer have been turned over to the family, some alterations in the way of partitions and additional bath rooms having been made.

Two big four-inch guns project from the quarters of the secretary of state. When the Charleston is in port these gun ports will be thrown open, but when at sea the cabin has no ventilation or light except that which comes through skylights and dead lights.

Errors of Speech.

The verb to get is one of our much misused words. It means to acquire, win, obtain, and primarily it signifies the putting forth of effort to attain something. Consequently it is not only superfluous, but incorrect, to speak of a man as "getting drowned" or getting sick, and you may unfortunately "have a cold." At this moment no exceptions occur to the writer to the rule that got should never be used in connection with have, which alone sufficiently expresses possession. Say "I have the picture," not "I have got the picture." "The dog has a broken leg," not "The dog has got a broken leg."

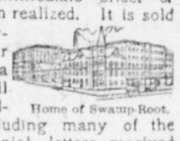
The irregular verbs lay and lie are frequently confounded. Lay is an active or transitive verb, and lie is passive or intransitive. We lay things down or have laid them down, but we and things lie at rest. You lie down, have lain down, will lie down or are lying down; she lay down yesterday and is going to lie down this afternoon. A frequent error is to confound the past tenses of these verbs. One should say, "Mary laid the book on the table and ay down herself," but the book lies on the table.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.



Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The New York World

The Thrice-a-Week World hopes to be in 1906 a better paper than it has ever been before, and it has made its arrangements accordingly. The Thrice-a-Week World is fair in its political reports. You can get the truth from its colums, whether you are Republican or Democrat, and that is what you want.

A special feature of the Thrice-aWeek World has always been its serial fiction. It publishes novels by the best authors in the world, novels which in book form sell for $1.50 apiece, and its high standard in this respect will be maintained in the future as in the past.

The Thrice-A-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and Bellefonte Republican together for one year for $1.50.

HECLA PARK PICNICKERS HURT ON WAY TO GROVE.

Vehicle Struck by Central Train at the Nittany Station Railroad Crossing.

A distressing accident occurred on the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania at Nittany station Wednesday forenoon as a result of which Lewis Brown, a 12 year-old Madisonburg boy is in the hospital here with a broken leg.

Young Brown and his grandfather were driving from Madisonburg to Hecla park to attend the picnic and arrived at the crossing at Nittany station just as the south bound train was due. The boy saw the train and cautioned his grandfather, but the latter thought he would have plenty of time to get safely across the tracks, but he miscalculated the speed of train and the rear end of the carriage was struck.

Both were thrown out and Lewis had his left leg broken and he was badly bruised about the body. The old gentleman was also badly bruised but no bones were broken. The injured boy was taken to Mill Hall on a Central train and was taken to the hospital in this city on a trolley car and had the broken leg set.

THE STEEL SQUARE.

Story of the Invention of the Tool Used by Carpenters.

The large steel squares used by carpenters are such common tools that perhaps few know when and where they were first made and how they came to be used or even give the matter a thought. The making of them is a great industry now, but when the last century came in there was not one in use.

The inventor was a poor Vermont blacksmith, Silas Howes, who lived in South Shaftsbury.

One dull, rainy day a peddler of tinware called at his shop to have the blacksmith fasten a shoe on his horse. Such peddlers traveled up and down the country, calling at every farmhouse, buying everything in the way of barter. This one had a number of worn-out steel saws that he had picked up in various places. Howes bargained for them, shoeing the peddler's horse and receiving the saws in payment, and each thought he had an excellent trade.

His idea was to polish and weld two saws together at right angles and thus make a rule or measure superior to anything then in use. After a few attempts he succeeded in making a square, marked it off into inches and fractions of inches and found that it answered every purpose that he intended it for.

In the course of a few weeks he made quite a number during his spare hours. These he sent out by the peddlers, who found every carpenter eager to buy one. Soon he found orders coming in faster than he could supply the demand. One of his steel "squares" would sell for $5 or $6, which was five times as much as it cost him.

He applied for and obtained a patent on his invention so that no one else could deprive him of the profit it gave him. It was just after the war of 1812, and money was scarce and difficult to get, but he worked early and late, and as he earned money he bought iron and hired men to help him. In a few years he was able to erect a large factory and put in machinery for the making of squares, which by this time had found their way all over the country and had made their inventor famous.

Such was the small beginning of a large and important industry. People came miles to see the wonderful forges, the showers of sparks flying from beneath the heavy hammers, and listen to the din of the thousand workmen.

Silas Howes lived to be a millionaire, and he did a great deal of good with his money.—Congregationalist.

Swallowed Her Dead Husband.

The only case on record of a disconsolate widow swallowing the remains of her dead husband is that of Artemesia drinking a glass of wine in which the ashes of Mausolus had been stirred for that purpose. The parties to this remarkable transaction were brother and sister and also husband and wife. Mausolus was king of Caria and reigned about 300 years before Christ. After his death his remains were burned and the ashes disposed of as related.

Consolation.

The honeymoon was over, and the husband, returning from business, was grieved to find his little wife crying bitterly. "Oh, George," she sobbed, "such a dreadful thing has happened. I had made you a beautiful pie all myself, and Fido went and ate it!" "Well, never mind, my dear," he said cheerfully, "we can easily buy another dog."—Birmingham Post.

Success In Business.

The path of success in business is invariably the path of common sense. Notwithstanding all that is said about "lucky hits," the best kind of success in every man's life is not that which comes by accident.—S. Smiles.

A Good Answer.

A shopkeeper had for his virtues obtained the name of "the little rascal." A stranger asked him why the appellation had been given to him.

"To distinguish me from the rest of my trade," quoth he, "who are all great rascals."—London Mail.

Wedding in South Philipsburg.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Stine, in South Philipsburg, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Miss Della, to George D. Wilson, of this place. The ceremony, which took place at 6 o'clock, was performed by Rev. Morris E. Swartz, of Clearfield, in the presence of quite an assembly of invited guests.

The home was very beautifully decorated, lending attractiveness to the happy occasion. The bride was gowned in a beautiful white lawn, and carried roses. She was attended by Miss Mary Wilson, sister of the groom. The latter wore the convential black, and had as his best man Matt. Renwick, of Coester Hill. After the ceremony and congratulations a sumptuous dinner was served. The bride was the recipient of many useful and handsome presents. Among the out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Elizabeth Lytle and daughter, Miss Ella, of Port Matilda, Jerry H. Kelly, grandfather of the bride, of Half Moon, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dewey of Tyrone.

The happy couple, both of whom are estimable young people, departed on the 8:02 train on a brief honeymoon trip. They will have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy and prosperous future.—Philipsburg Journal.

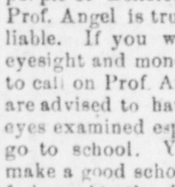
THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.



Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then brazilian balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

How Scores of Bellefonte People Obtain Relief.

If it really were known how many Bellefonte residents have been cured of stomach trouble and digestion by Dr. Davis' Prescription, it might perhaps surprise you, but what is more surprising is the fact that any one will continue to suffer with heart burn, sour stomach, water brash, sick headache, mental depression, nausea, and other distressing symptoms of dyspepsia when there is a remedy of such great merit that it almost invariably benefits every one that tries it. Pepsikola Tablets are the prescription of Dr. Davis, a physician who devoted a lifetime to the study of stomach trouble, and, if your food does not agree with you, if you are tired, nervous, worn out, low spirited and your energy at low par, it may interest you to know that no other prescription in this world has a greater record of cures behind it, and there is nothing more certain to give you relief. Mr. C. M. Parrish will tell you that although Pepsikola is sold on the fairest kind of a money back plan, not more than two in one hundred ever come back for their money. This is the surest evidence of its marvelous curative properties, but so that there may not be the least doubt in your mind as to what Pepsikola will do for you Mr. Parrish will hand your quarter right back to you if you should fail to receive the benefit you look for.

Fear War With Turkey In Summer.

Tiflis, Trans-Caucasia, May 16.—There is considerable excitement in Trans-Caucasia owing to the possibility of war with Turkey in the summer. Turkey seems to be mobilizing troops near the frontier, explaining that they are simply engaged in manoeuvres. Nevertheless the viceroy of Trans-Caucasia appears to be preparing for eventualities. General Malama, the chief of staff, has made an extensive inspection of the frontier, and the fortifications of Kars, the strongest fortress on the border, are being strengthened.

"A SQUARE DEAL."

How President Roosevelt's Motto is Illustrated by Pepsikola.

C. M. Parrish says Pepsikola Tablets is the best possible illustration of what our strenuous President means by a square deal. This remarkable remedy is sold to everybody with the express agreement that if it does not do exactly as represented the buyer's money will be cheerfully refunded. They are guaranteed to quickly relieve and permanently cure all stomach troubles, tone up the whole system, give new life and vigor, better courage, more vitality, and bring the weak, weary and despondent back to joyous health.

If they do not cure you of heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, dizziness, headache, lassitude, and all other unpleasant conditions arising from indigestion, all you have to do is to step into Mr. Parrish's Drug Store and he will pay your money back.

The price is only 25c if they cure. If they fail the cost is nothing. But they won't fail. Mr. Parrish will tell you that dozens of people you know have been benefitted and cured of indigestion and dyspepsia by Pepsikola Tablets, and they will give you a "square deal." No cure, no pay.

The Green Firecrackers.

As it is getting close to the Fourth now, the young folks as well as the older ones, are as much puzzled as ever over the green firecracker. Why is it that there is one in the pack sometimes that is wrapped with green paper instead of red? What is there about it that deserves the green paper? It is not any louder than the other ones, nor any weaker. All our lives long we are jostled and elbowed by riddles we cannot solve, and this is one of them. Can some of the grown ups explain it.

A Flemington Store Mark for Burglars.

Sometime during the early hours of Saturday morning thieves broke into the store of G. W. Fredericks at Flemington. Admittance to the store was made by removing a couple of panes of glass from a window in the rear of the store room.

Mr. Fredericks estimates the amount of goods taken by the robbers at from $10 to $25. The goods which have been missed consists of a lot of cigars, tobacco, shoes, base balls, mouth organs, etc.

Suspicion points to three young men who are strangers in the town and had for several evenings, prior to the stealing, been noticed loafing about the store.

They had been working at the Ameri-Brick works, but an inquiry at the office this morning stated that they had left there yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Corvin, who reside near the store room, heard the noise made by the burglars and in looking out of the window saw three men or boys come from the rear of the store and go down over the embankment and up the tow path of the old canal but they had no suspicion of what had been doing.

Mr. Fredericks' store has been frequently robbed and it is to be hoped that he will be successful in catching the guilty parties.

—The wedding of Miss Effie Pomroy, formerly of Mill Hall, and well known here, and Dr. Gills, of Wooster, Ohio, is announced to take place the latter part of July, immediately after which they will go abroad for a years stay. Miss Pomeroy is now in Bellefonte having her trosseau made.

—Farmer Thomas Fishburn of Lemont on going to the barn found his favorite filly with its left hind leg broken. Dr. W. H. Fry, V. S. was called and adjusted the fracture, and filly is doing nicely.

—William B. Shope, convicted in court, last week, of attempting to burn an out building at the Behm house, an Altoona hotel, was sentenced to a term of seven years in the penitentiary and a fine of $100. When called up for sentence Shope declared that he was innocent of the charge and told the judge that a former term in the prison had so undermined his health that he feared on that account to go there again. Before sentencing him Judge Shull told him that his former term had apparently not improved his conduct in the least. Expectations that the trial of Shope might develop some information regarding the fires at the glass plant and Reighard's oil house were not realized. Shope formerly was from Centre Co.

—If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbors' faults. Forget the slander you have heard. Forget the fault finding, and give a little thought to the cause which provoked it, Forget the peculiarities of your friends, and only remember the good points which make you fond of them. Forget all personal quarrels or histories you may have heard by accident and which if repeated would seem a thousand times worse then they are. Blot out as far as possible all the disagreeables of life; they will come, but they will grow larger when you remember them and the constant thought of the acts of meanness, or worse still, malice, will only tend to make you more familiar with them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday, start out with a clean sheet for today and write upon it for sweet memory's sake only those things which are lovely and lovable.

HUNTINGDON REFORMATORY.

Interesting Exercise at the Institution's Annual Commencement.

The annual commencement of the pupils of the schools of the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon was held Friday, June 29, the large attendance of visitors being responded to well by the young inmates who gave a program of exercises and an exhibit of industrial accomplishment that speaks volumes for the wise management, sound instruction and valuable training imparted in the institution.

The spacious auditorium was crowded at 2 o'clock when the commencement exercises took place. The young inmates entered as their band played a march, and in orderly manner were seated. After a couple of musical selections, J. D. Dorris Esq., of the board of managers, introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. George T. Gunter, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Tyrone, who delivered an able and cheery address; pointing out optimistically the good things of life that awaited the young man before him. He showed them that some of the greatest men that ever lived had encountered difficulties that had seemed to stand as insuperable barriers to their advancement. The address pointed the right way in the right way, and it was received with deep attention by the boys who gave every indication of taking its lessons to heart.

The salutary, an original production, by a young man of the institution, was an especially excellent one. Others of the inmates recited cleverly, and took part in a debate which showed careful preparation and skilful handling of their subject, "The Restriction of Immigration." The judges in the debate were John P. Harris of Bellefonte; Robert L. Scott of Bellwood; and Claude Jones, of Tyrone. After the formal exercises the visitors went through the industrial schools and witnessed the fine progress of the inmates in the various trades. Another program of music, recitations and exercises was given in the evening. The commencement was held under the direction of J. B. Patton, the able general superintendent of the institution; the program being in charge of Prof. J. A. Likens, who is the efficient superintendent of the schools.

Concerning Cold Baths.

Cold baths in the morning are undoubtedly beneficial, but only to those persons who have sufficient vitality and nervous force to insure good reaction.

Many persons who are greatly refreshed by their morning cold bath feel tired or languid two or three hours afterward. When this occurs they should leave the cold bath severely alone, says the Philadelphia Press.

Persons who have an abundance of blood and flesh, who are lymphatic or sluggish in temperament, and whose nervous force is not depleted, can take a cold bath to advantage.

Those who are inclined to be thin, whose hands and feet become cold and clammy on slight provocation, who digest food slowly, and assimilate it slowly with difficulty, who are nervous and who have much on their mind, should avoid early morning cold bathing. For such, a warm bath before retiring at night is recommended.

Anti Vaccinationists Beaten

Judge Gillan, of Chambersburg, handed down an opinion Tuesday in the case of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania ex-relation, Hampton L. Carson Attorney General, vs. the school directors of Waynesboro, the school superintendent and teachers of the Snyder Avenue school, that place.

This is the case in which anti vaccinationists of Waynesboro are involved. A writ of alternative mandamus had been granted, at the instance of the Attorney General, to the school authorities, its purpose being to bring the school authorities into court to show cause why they should not exclude Grace Stull from school because she did not have a certificate of successful vaccination.

A motion to quash the writ was made by the anti-vaccinationists. The court refuses to grant the prayer to quash the writ and discharges the rule. The defendants are required to file an answer to the alternative writ within twenty days.

—Orders have been issued from Philadelphia headquarters of the P. R. R. requiring all brakeman, porters, etc., to cry "all aboard" two minutes before trains are due to leave each division terminal station. Numerous complaints of passengers being left behind because in exercising they have stayed too far away from their train to get back after the short notice "all aboard" was heard, resulted in the change.

BELLEFONTE

As it Was Then and is Now.

Sunday, at their Sabbath morning services, all of our pastors preached on the subject of Sabbath Day Observance in Bellefonte.

There was no difference of opinion expressed as to the requirements of the Fourth Commandment. Lest we forget, God distinctly enjoins upon us to "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." The one prayer was the same for all, "Lord have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law."

In their sermons the several preachers, all with one accord, agree with the venerable Dr. Cuyler, of Brooklyn, that "the Christian religion cannot exist without the worship of God and that worship cannot be maintained without the Sabbath."

We have occasion for gratitude that in Bellefonte there is a marked improvement in some directions beyond anytime in its past history. It would be easy to specify if space permitted.

To every intelligent observer, it is openly evident that, during this passing generation there has been a manifest declension in Sabbath Day observance in our beautiful fountain town. Having my residence here for more than thirty five years, I can easily recall the time when no bakery wagon was seen in our streets delivering ice cream on the Sabbath Day. The time was when no one in Bellefonte was seen going to the open post office on Sunday returning at church time with business letters and Sunday newspapers their columns teeming with the vilest of tragedian occurrences, worldly pleasure scenes, sporting news and frivilous commicalities taken home for family perusal on God's holy day. In those days, none of our citizens were seen boarding a Sunday train; taking the Lord's day for the doing of those things which God has sacredly appointed to be done only in the six days of the week. The time was when there were no dairymen coming into Bellefonte delivering mild seven days every week giving themselves, their fellows and horses no needful rest, thereby transegressing laws both sacred and divine. Viewing these things in the passing generation what shall be said of the coming generation? It requires no prophet to foretell. Sure as the present existing methods of spending Sunday in Bellefonte prevail our children, educated by our example, will go farther astray in the forbidden direction.

Is it is not time for Christian parents and "the watchmen on the walls of Zion" to heed the Divine mandate to "Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet and show my people their transgression?"

It will be asked, "what are you going to do about it to ensure a more sacred regard for the Sabbath to keep it holy in Bellefonte?" Christ answers the question where he has said in his Gospel, thrice repeated that none who read could overlook it. "If any one will come after me let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me." The first step in a consistent Christian life is, not indulgence, but self-denial. Without it there can be no near approach Christward or Heavenward. A little exercise of self-denial will do for our Bellefonte what cannot be done too soon. Let the demand for milk and ice cream on Sunday cease as in some other places. Our dairy-men and bakers will gladly accept the privilege given them for rest on the Lord's day. When professing Christians withhold their patronage for Sunday news papers and Sunday trains this secularizing of sacred time will be measurably reduced to say the least. No secular business will continue on Sunday if it does not pay in money and money making for worldly gain on God's holy day is unlawful in every sense of the word. God's people, God with them, can do anything our sinful suffering world needs to have done. We must not close our eyes to the fact that all church doors are kept open, all Gospel work everywhere supported, preachers and missioners verily fed and sustained by money constantly come to us from secular business sources. Never the less, what I have written concerning Sabbath desecration in Bellefonte is deplorably true and we plead for its discontinuance, because we are deeply grieved witnessing the harmful condition and do most earnestly desire that every deed doing in our midst to the hindrance of the coming of the kingdom of God shall be forever removed.

A Rabbit's Foot.

Did you ever hear of the custom among the colored people of the south of carrying a rabbit's foot in the pocket for good luck? That little animal is regarded by them with superstitious admiration and they tell many stories of its cleverness in outwitting its natural enemies, the dog, the fox and the wolf, and in circumventing every scheme intended for its punishment. This belief in the sagacity of the living rabbit gave rise to a belief that a dead rabbit has certain magic powers, and one of the evidences of the superstition is the custom of carrying the foot, not only for good luck, but as a charm against disease. It is the left hind foot that is preferred, and if it be taken from a rabbit that was in the habit of running through a graveyard its efficacy is largely increased.

Willie, Willie, where are you?
Echo only says: 'Skidoo!"

—Whatever the child's daytime naughtiness may have been, at night-fall he should be forgiven and go to rest with the mother's kiss on his lips and her voice in his ear. Hardly anything can be worse for a young child than to be scolded or punished at bedtime, and to carry into its dreams harshness or gloom. The mother does well to be a little blind to some things and remember that such childish culpability is superficial and washes off almost as easily as the soil from the hands in the evening bath. Children should never be allowed to carry with them in their thought the mental suffering which many parents seem to think is absolutely necessary in the careful bringing up of children.

—At the picnic of Ministers and their families which was held at Hecla park last Tuesday, among other sports was a paper balloon ascension. Attached to the balloon was a letter containing the following together with the signatures of twenty seven persons. "Preacher's Picnic Hecla Park, July 3rd, 1906. Please return this slip to one of the following persons." The balloon was picked up in a field on and one half miles from Hecla, having encountered a heavy rainstorm. —Mrs. J. M. Guffer, the wife of the state Democratic leader, Col. James M. Guffey, of Pittsburg, was seriously injured in a runaway accident in her home city on Friday of last week. She was thrown from her carriage, alighting on her head on the paved street. It will be of interest here to know that the runaway team was caught by a Tyrone young man, B Foster Burley, who is employed in the Relief department of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburg. Mr. Burley caught the team and drove it back to the scene of the accident; Mrs. Guffer, with physicians, was placed in the carriage; and then Mr. Burley drove the horses to the injured lady's home. Mrs. Guffey is improving and her recovery is confidently expected.—Tyrone Herald.

—The Fourth was the greatest day in the history of Huntingdon. Over 5,000 visitors came from all over the state, every train arriving being crowded with expectant sightseers. The parade was held in the morning, which was participated in by three military companies—E. of Altoona; K. of Huntindon, and G. of Lewistown; Grand Army veterans, Spanish war veterans, military and civic organizations and citizens. The Altoona aerie of Eagles sent a delegation of 150, and headed by the Mitchell band, of Gallitzin, they made a fine showing in the parade. Races, a sham battle, base ball, fireworks, etc., was the program that was carried out through the day and evening. The town was more gorgeously decorated than upon the occasion of the centennial year ten years ago.

—Pleasing other people is a difficult and changeable task. Men and women want one thing today and another tomorrow. They like what is wrong, sometimes, and what is vain, frivolous, and cheap. To pattern our lives and characters to please them is to lose all nobility of manhood or womanhood. Pleasing God is difficult, perhaps, but always the same. God asks certain high and good things, things lasting in their power and joy; and he never forsakes or disappoints. The boy or girl who starts out in youth to please God, not men, is sure of success and of reward. The boy or girl who lets the influence of companions rule instead, is sure to be disappointed, and morally cheapened and injured, —Sometimes it seems more trouble than it's worth to keep up my bit of a garden, said the old woman, tired of her weeding, and dropping down upon the steps to rest. "Sometimes I think I'll let my lettuce and onion beds go; that that the only ones that can really enjoy having such things is rich folks that can keep a gardener to tend em. But if I did, I s'pose I'd be just like them old Israelites, I don't doubt they fumed and fretted when they was in Egypt about how hard it was to keep their onion beds weeded, and how they didn't feel able to it after workin' all day in the brick fields. No sooner are they free from it all, though, with their food comin' straight from heaven without any bother to 'em' than they begin to mourn for the onions they used to raise. That's the way with the lot of us. We grumble and complain, wish we could have easy times, but the thing we work for is the thing we prize most, and there's nothing quite so good as the thing we used to have and wasn't satisfied with.

—Not in years have rattlesnakes been so plentiful in Clinton county as this season. They are especially prolific in the region of Hyner's Run, and some monsters have been slaughtered. A woodsman employed in the J. L. Reitz lumber camp, located on Pine creek fork of Hyner run, four miles from the Susquehanna river, relates a story to the Lock Haven Express that seems almost incredible, yet he vouches for its truthfulness. He states that in his camp sixty rattlesnakes have been killed thus far this season and it is no unusual thing to slaughter a half dozen in a single day. As high as seventeen rattles have been found on a single snake, which will give an idea as to the size of some of the venomous reptiles.

Rue, of Mifflinburg, to the pastorate of the church at Waynesboro rendered vacant by the death of his brother, Rev. Dr. John W. Rue. Rev. C. W. Karns, of Coalport, goes to Mifflinburg, and Rev. W. A. Lepley, of Market street, Williamsport to Coalport. The Market street appointment will be filled by a supply. The visit of Bishop Berry to Williamsport was taken to be significant of his intentions concerning the presiding eldership of the Harrisburg district, made vacant by the death of Rev. Dr. G. W. Stevens. It is stated on good authority that the eldership was offered to Rev. Emory M. Stevens, pastor of the Pine street church, Williamsport. The appointment is not likely to be made for sometime.

—William Sauselein, a married man, of Lakemont Terrace, having eloped with a pretty young girl from East Altoona, was finally overtaken in New Jersey and brought back to Altoona, having two serious charges against him, Sauselein resided at Lakemont Terrace with his wife and three children. He had been employed by the Logan Valley troley company until two weeks ago, when he resigned. Sauselein was Mrs. Joanna Sauselein's second husband. Sauselein several months ago met a young woman from East Altoona, became infatuated with her and, it is alleged, induced her to run away with him. Friday night, June 29, Sauselein and his "lady love" disappeared and went to New Jersey, where they claim they were married Mrs. Sauselein claims Sauselein is her lawful husband, while he claims he has a wife in New Jersey. The young woman who eloped with him also claims Sauselein as her lawful husband.

Can't Bury in Church Lot If Behind in Dues.

"Pay your church membership dues, and remain in good church standing, or you cannot be buried in the church cemetery.

This rule was brought up at a congregational meeting of the First Lutheran church of Selinsgrove Friday night by the pastor, the Rev. G. W. Genezler, and was carried, the larger portion of the members present not voting either way. Nearly forty years ago, George L. Becker of Selinsgrove died having made his last will and testament, devising a tract of land to the First Evangelical Lutheran church of Selinsgrove for use as a burial ground, for members of the congregation.

It was always understood that members could select lots free of cost and bury their dead thereon, as the will provides, and the opinion that the new order is in direct conflict with the will is shared by the leading members of the Snyder county bar. It is highly probable that litigations will follow enforcement of the new rule.

W. J. Donnelly's Death.
